

LABOR PARADE OF 50,000.

Six Divisions of Trade Unionists Will March Down 5th Ave. from the Plaza.

Preparations were completed yesterday by the Labor Day Committee of the Central Federated Union for its Labor Day parade on Monday, Sept. 4, and the affiliated unions were notified last evening of their respective positions in line. It was estimated by the committee that there will be 50,000 men and women in line. Of these there will be 30,000 cloakmakers, of whom 10,000 will be women.

The parade will be in six divisions and the line of march will be from the Central Park Plaza at Fifty-ninth Street, down Fifth Avenue to Washington Square, where the parade will disband. The parade will start at 10 A. M., the unions forming east and west from Fifty-third to Fifty-ninth Street and falling in line in their appointed places as the unions in the parade, which starts from the Plaza, pass them.

Like last year, the most picturesque feature in the parade will be the Women's Trade Union League, which will be in the fourth division. The officers and members of the league will be dressed in white and will wear caps and sashes with the league emblems. Several decorated trucks filled with officers of the league will be in line, followed by the rank and file, and there will be a float to illustrate Life and Labor. On this will be a child playing with a doll as a protest against child labor, besides several league members representing Life and Labor.

The league organizations will carry banners inscribed with such mottoes as "Do you want fair treatment!—Organize." "Do you want shorter hours?—Organize." "Do you want clean factories?—Organize." "Do you want sanitary conditions?—Organize." "Do you want fire protection?—Organize." "Eight-hour day, with more pay, is O. K."

The unions in line as a rule will be in special uniforms, and every organization will be preceded by a brass or flute band. The general officers of the parade will march at its head in the following order, behind a police platoon:

President Thomas J. Curtis and the delegates of the Central Federated Union will follow, and the unions will march in this order:

First Division.—Charles Shay, Marshal; Theatrical Protective Union, Theatrical Calcium Light Operators, United Housemiths and Bridgemen No. 40, Inside Iron Workers.

Second Division.—John C. O'Brien, Marshall; International Brotherhood of Teamsters Locals, Eccentric Firemen No. 58, Pattern Makers' Association, Beer Drivers' Union No. 23.

Third Division.—William Cronin, Marshal; Tunnel and Subway Constructors, Machinist District Council No. 15, Pavers and Rammersmen District Council, Engineers No. 184, Engineers No. 184A.

Fourth Division.—T. J. Walsh, Marshal; Atlantic Coast Seamen, Riggers' Protective Union No. 783, longshoremen's unions, St. Gregory's ambulance, Typographical Union No. 7, International Brotherhood of Electricians No. 20, Women's Trade Union League, Journeymen Tailors No. 390.

Fifth Division.—Samuel Martin, Marshal; Joint Executive Board of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, Local No. 10 of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, Local No. 1 of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, Local No. 9 of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, Local No. 17 of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union.

Sixth Division.—E. J. Deering, Marshal; Local No. 20 of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union; Local 23 of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, Local No. 35 of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, Local No. 64 of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union.

When the parade disbands most of the paraders will go to outdoor Labor Day festivals and picnics. Brooklyn and the other boroughs will also celebrate Labor Day by out-of-door festivals or parades.

LOST EXECUTOR PAYS UP.

V. R. Delnoce, Missing for Months, Settles with Anxious Heirs.

R. C. Elzer, an attorney of 32 Nassau Street, Manhattan, said yesterday in New Rochelle that before the sudden and unexplained reappearance last Thursday of Vincent R. Delnoce at his home, 35 Leland Avenue, New Rochelle, after an absence which caused his relatives much concern, Delnoce had made a settlement in full of his obligations as executor of the will of his mother, Ann Rebecca Delnoce, who died three years ago.

Attempts to locate Delnoce by a wide search over the whole continent, which revealed traces of him in Mexico, the State of Washington, Montreal, and Philadelphia, were unsuccessful over a period of several months, until Delnoce appeared at his office and paid over in cash the claims against him, Mr. Elzer said.

The explanation of the Delnoce family for the disappearance, about which its members were reticent, was that their absent relative had suffered an attack of aphasia. Delnoce has refused to discuss his disappearance since his return Thursday.

According to Mr. Elzer, Delnoce was named as co-executor of his mother's estate with his brother, Angelo, who died before his mother, and Vincent qualified as executor. Angelo's share was claimed by his children, Louis D. Delnoce and Camille C. Brown. Their claim was questioned in the Surrogate's Court of New York County and was decided in their favor by Surrogate Thomas, who ordered their uncle to pay them $15,193. This amount was paid in full on Wednesday, Mr. Elzer said.
